THE SIXTH STREET TRACKS. Judge Cox Says They Are Illegal and Grants an Injunction.

Edwin Sutherland against the Washington and Georgetown railroad company and the District of Columbia—to restrain the use of 6th street by the railroad company while laying the cable in 7th street. An order was made admitting W. B. Williams and others as parties complainant,

Mr. Cook appeared for the complainants, Mr. Totten for the railroad company and Mr. Riddle for the District.

Mr. Cook read the bill and Mr. Riddle the affidavit of Capt Symons published in The STAR. Mr. Riddle claimed that there was no more authority for laying a track on the sides of 7th street than there was to use 6th street, and he read the law that the work was to be done under the supervision of the Commissioners, and that the work was being done for the best interests of the public.

Mr. Totten said that the railroad had asked to lay the tracks on 6th street, but desired to lay the cable with the least possible incon-venience to the public and for the public good. This feature had not been alluded to. Electrical power was as yet an experiment, and therefore they had adopted the cable, and they expected to have the work done in a few THE COURT SAYS SIXTH STREET CANNOT BE USED.

The court said that while the public would be inconvenienced in laying the cable there was not the least warrant of law for the use of 6th street, and while it would perhaps damage the 7th street people, 6th street could not be used. There was no disguising the fact that the tracks on 6th street made a nuisance. Mr. Riddle asked what rights the complain-

The court answered that they lived on 6th street and were interested parties.

Mr. Riddle said that the District was in a peculiar position—they were responsible for the streets, were required to keep them in repair, and Congress gave the right to a private corporation to dig up the street. He had had his doubts as to the right of use of 6th street, but he thought the proposition was the easiest way out of a difficulty.

The court said that he would grant the injunction and they could appeal if they desired.

A BURGLAR IN THE HOUSE. Manager Hart and Other Persons Robbed.

Miss Annie Lewis of this city is playing with Hallen and Hart's troupe at the National this week. Mr. Jos. Hart while here is stopping at the house of Miss Annie's parents, No. 18 4th street southeast. He arrived in the city late Saturday night and went directly to Mr. Lewis' house. It was after midnight when he retired. Before daybreak a burglar entered the house through the rear window from the porch and visited nearly every room in it. Sunday morning when the family arose they noticed a peculiar odor, like chloroform; saw the open rear window and the tracks of the burglar on the carpet. He entered the burglar on the carpet. He entered the bad bad "They let them out faster than we can put "They let them out faster than we can put bad because Horne It ap-Hart's room he carried off a valuable gold watch and chain, a diamond pin and a po ket book containing about $20 in cash. The room of Mr. G. E. White was robbed of a silver watch and $8 in money. In Mr. Lewis' room the burglar did not secure much plunder, but as his own socks had been covered with lime he carried off Mr. Lewis' stockings. It is almost certain that the burglar used chloroform, for after going through the house he went to the kitchen, where he enjoyed a square meal. The police have been notified of the robbery and the detectives are investigating the case.

MR. HART'S HABIT. MR. HART'S HABIT.

Mr. Hart had been in the habit of carrying large sums of money about him, received after banking hours. It is thought that the robbery

Enthusiastic Reception to Mrs. Odell. Mrs. A. S. Odell, president of Potomac corps, Woman's Relief corps, was tendered an enthusiastic reception by her coworkers in that cause at Grand Army hall last night, which was well attended. The Old Guard visited the hall in a body during the evening. Miss Helen speech of greeting, which was cleverly re-sponded to by Mrs. Odell, who, on behalf of Mrs. Craig, president of the late convention at Milwaukee, presented bronze badges to the members, commemorative of the convention.

Celebrated by a Banquet.

Mr. W. H. Lepley, the proprietor of the Church News, celebrated the commencement of the fourth year of that publication last night by a banquet at his residence, 813 15th street northwest. The discussion of an excellent menu occupied a couple of hours pleasantly, during which Mr. Lepley beamed upon his guests, who comprised many of the Catholic clergy and other well-known gentlemen, and then Mr. D. Associated Charities-Funds Needed. A special meeting of the board of managers of the associated charities was held at the central office, 707 G street northwest, last evening, to confer with other organizations with reference to the necessity for a reform school for girls, also to consider the matter of entertainments to raise money for the benefit of the as-Sociation. Among those present were Judge Snell, Rev. J. H. Bradford, A. S. Solomon, Mrs. Dr. Lamb, L. S. Emery, Dr. Lamb, Mrs. Thomas, Miss Smith and Mrs. Bradford. The secretary stated that no appeal had been made for our home poor during the summer owing to the fact that everybody was aroused to the necessities of the flood sufferers; that a noble and generous response had been made in their behalf, but that he could not now refrain from calling attention to our own necessities. The association is now out of funds and there are many needy and deserving families who if not helped at once will suffer keenly. He ex-pressed a hope that the citizens of the District would respond promptly and generously.

W. A. Cook and nounced the report as false, for they said it L. Godkin, editor of the New York Nation; had been life-long republicans. Furthermore, they said, there were clerks who had no politics and these had been shoved into the democratic column.

WHAT COMMISSIONERS DOUGLASS AND HINE SAY. Commissioner Hine had not seen the list when The Star reporter called on him for an expression of his views. After a hurried perusal of it he said: "All I have to say is that if

Commissioner Douglass when asked for an expression of his views regarding the list said to a STAR reporter:
"I have already expressed my views on this subject and have nothing more to say."

COL. CARSON'S CORRECTIONS. Col. Perry Carson states that after carefully looking over the names of the District officers, as reported to the central committee last evening, he finds several officials incorrectly classified. The following republicans of the health office—T. M. Shepherd, D. P. Hickling, J. V. Carrahar, R. A. Pyles and R.A. Neal—are classified in the report as democrats. And the following democrats of the same office, viz., Dr. Townshend and Samuel Einsteine, are classified as republicans. He adds: "There may be other inaccuracies listed in the names of the other officers stated in the report, which will be duly corrected."

The Criminal Court Juries.

This morning-the Criminal Court, Judge Bradley, proceeded to fill the vacancies in the Newman, J. D. Robinson, Harry F. Smith, James W. Ferguson and Elphonzo Youngs. The court appointed John Keyworth as fore-man and they were charged by the court as to their duties.

The following of those drawn for the petit jury were accepted: Benj. W. Guy, Charles D. Scott, Delaware Hudnell, Peter McCartney.

The court directed that five names be drawn from which to fill this vacancy.

It was remarked that of the twelve summoned for the grand jury no excuses were proffered, but when those for the petit jury were called excuses were as plentiful as under the old system. The term of the petit jurors is now but one month and possibly not over

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM. Geo. Wm. Curtis Arraigns the Administration for Breach of Faith.

The annual meeting of the national civil service reform league, of which George William Curtis is president, began in Philadelphia yesterday. After the transaction of routine business the visiting delegates sat down to an informal banquet at the Colonnade tendered District officials, with their politics, reported at a them by the local association, at which George William Curtis presided.

He aswith reference to civil service reform. He asserted that the republican party, by reason of its last national platform, and President Harri-son, by virtue of his public utterances, were as strongly pledged to the cause of civil service reform as to the principles of protection. He quoted the President's denunciation of the spoils system when a Senator as "the frank and bold, if not brutal, method of turning men out simply for political opinion," and analyzed the record of the party leaders generally, especially during Mr. Cleveland's administration. After contrasting the positions of the two great parties upon the subject of civil service reform he charged that the President had not observed the spirit of the civil service law in his appointments or removals, and referred particularly to the action of Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson in the rapid removal of fourth class postmasters.

Mr. Curtis then referred to party organs in Missouri, New Hampshire, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Iowa and New York ridiculing the civil service law as "a humbug," "a sham," &c., and calling for a return to the spoils system. Three members of the cabinet decline to profess their adherence to the most emphatic deciaration of the party platform, and one laughingly remarks that he does not think he has appointed many democrats to office so far. institutions in which she surpassed all others beyond question was her corruption. When, three years hence, we welcome that world upon our shores to another competition of proficiency in those arts, shall we be content with industrial superiority and material splendor? While our inventive genius, our daring enterprise, our swift civilization of a continent, may stir the wonder of the world, shall it not be our proudest boast that, as the material miracle has been wrought under popular government, our greatest achievement is the moral miracle of the constant purification of that government by the virtue and intelligence of the people THE SOUTHWESTERN STRIKE.

Mr. Powderly Says His Record in Tha Matter is Indorsed.

The general executive board of the Knights of Labor began a session yesterday at the Laclede hotel in St. Louis. Ever since the southwestern strike in 1886 there has been more or less trouble in this section, and it is believed that the present meeting will result in a settlement of many things in that connection that have long been a bone of contention within tion during that strike Mr. Powderly yesterday said: "My record in the matter of the southwestern strike is open to inspection and is understood and indorsed by the order. The strike was ordered without due authority. The constitution of the order was violated. I have in my possession numerous letters from local assemblies begging the executive board for God's sake to step in and end the struggle. After my trip west during the strike I returned to New York and there saw Mr. Gould. I supposed that he was a man of his word. At the time of the conference held in the Astor house lay Gould said to me that he would arbitrate Jay Gould said to me that he would arbitrate the trouble with his men. This was all we had asked and I ordered the strike off. The next day Gould stated that he meant by arbitrating with his men those who were in his employ at that time. What nonsense and duplicity that was. Gould had no trouble with men who were at work. I was simply trapped." A Woman Circuit Rider.

To the Lower Wabash annual conference United Brethren in Christ, whose thirty-second session closed the other day, belongs the honor of giving to the church its first lady circuit rider in Miss Alva Button of Greenup, Ill. The act authorizing the innovation was passed by the session of the general conference held last May. Only a few days ago Miss Ella Mishwanger, a graduate of the theological seminary, Dayton, Ohio, was ordained as an elder at the session of the central Illinois conference, being the first woman ordained. At the same conference Mrs. Elliot was also admitted. Later Mrs. Bell, wife of an itinerant preacher, was admitted to conference. admitted to conference. None of these were assigned to fields of labor. Miss Button is a young lady of more than average attainments, common sense and pluck, and it may be added that she possesses beauty, being tall and prepos-
